

GOP cheers, Nixon hits campaign trail

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — A happy, and pepped-up President Nixon hit the campaign trail today in search of the "new majority" he promised to win for the Republicans who gave him a roaring sendoff at the close of their national convention.

Nixon headed toward California with two speeches en route with a personal thank-you and a round of fence-side handshaking at Homestead Air Force Base for some paratroopers who were summoned in the event protest demonstrations got out of hand. They were not used.

They were part of a contingent of 5,500 federal and National Guard troops who stood by as local and state police handled demonstrations which saw 1,100 arrests.

"We appreciate your services," Nixon told 500 fatigued soldiers from the 32nd Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg, N.C. The GIs responded with cheers and whistles.

While Nixon heads for Chicago and a speech to the American Legion, his running mate, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, was at work on the kind of basic party duties that could thrust him to the forefront when the GOP picks its next candidate four years from now.

Agnew dropped by a meeting of the Republican National Committee for a pep-talk on party unity and presumably to consolidate his position among the GOP professionals. Some party conservatives met Wednesday and generally agreed Agnew was their favorite for 1976.

Nixon's first campaign-type speech, before the Legionnaires in Chicago, included an attack on the "honest but misguided" voices of those who say we should weaken America and naively hope for peace tomorrow — an obvious reference to his Democratic opponent Sen. George S. McGovern, (whom Nixon did not mention by name) who has called for $30 billion in defense cuts. Nixon promised "economy always, weakness never."

McGovern, vote hunting in Minneapolis, attacked the convention which gave Nixon his third presidential nomination in a dozen years as "the most incredibly closed and controlled national convention in American history."

"The Democratic convention," McGovern said, "was open to the people. The Republican convention was a place for the President to hide."

In his speech to the convention's final session Wednesday night — and the millions of voters who watched it on television — Nixon urged discontented Democrats and others to

"Join our new majority — not on the basis of the party label you wear on your lapel but what you believe in your hearts."

Nixon seemed convinced he could win the "four more years" the delegates repeatedly chanted about, with continued appeals to independents and "those millions who have been driven out of your home in the Democratic party."

Remnants of protest demonstrations were still evident in Miami Beach on the day after, but the ocean playground was fast returning to normalcy. A few bus-benches were overturned in the street and litter dotted grassy strips of palm-lined boulevards — the work of protesters who staged their maximum effort Wednesday night.

Judges were still processing the demonstrators arrested in the disruptive though largely ineffective attempt to stall traffic and harass delegates.

The mayor of Miami Beach, Chuck Hall, said he didn't care to host another convention of either party again, saying it cost too much, for one thing, and hurt tourist business.

ATTEMPTS BY anti-war demonstrators to prevent delegates to Republican National Convention from hearing President Nixon's acceptance speech on renomination sparked a series of clashes in Miami Beach Wednesday, with about 1,100 persons arrested. ## Probe planned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department said Wednesday it is planning an investigation of former Attorney General Ramsey Clark or former White House press secretary Pierre Salinger for possibly having violated the law by holding discussions with North Vietnamese officials.

Both Salinger and Clark are strong supporters of Sen. George S. McGovern. Salinger talked to North Vietnamese officials in Paris in McGovern's behalf, and Clark briefed the Democratic presidential nominee after returning from Hanoi. "We are not looking into whether they have violated the Logan act," a department spokesman said.

Newsman sniffs fumes on way to GOP session

MIAMI BEACH — I walked through the crowd of demonstrators outside Convention Hall Wednesday night, and, would you believe it, I was almost seriously injured.

I'd been sleeping in the hotel room during the late afternoon and before leaving for Convention Hall I tuned in a local TV station. The reporters were telling about angry demonstrators confronting angry police, and made the demonstration situation sound terrible. They said police were letting demonstrators have the run of the street, but were barring reporters from the area.

So I got some Idaho delegates to carry my cameras and I put all my pencils and badges into my pocket and, clad in work shoes, slacks and a sport shirt, set out to walk the 18 blocks from the Caribbean Hotel to Convention Hall.

Guests at the Caribbean were telling their children to stay inside because police were spraying tear gas in the street outside. But I noticed no tear gas until I'd gone five blocks. There, some demonstrators were trying to block delegates from coming out of the Saxony Hotel, and the tear gas stung my eyes. I walked a block through it and, if I'd been a determined demonstrator, could probably have stood it much longer. But I was inspired by nothing more fervent than curiosity, and I turned aside, detoured a block and got out of the gas. That put me along the Indian River Canal. I thought of washing my eyes; but after looking at the water I decided I'd rather take my chances with the tear gas.

Cool spell not unusual in August

TWIN FALLS — The cool weather in the Magic Valley the past few days and nights is not unusual for the month of August.

Winter-like temperatures are beginning early this year in the central Rockies. Traveler's warnings were to expect the high-mountain passes of Colorado and Wyoming today. Occasional snow will make for hazardous driving as a frontal system moves out of the central Rockies producing heavy thundershowers in the high plains with cold weather and snow behind the system.

Temperatures this morning were well down in the 30s at higher elevations in Wyoming and Colorado.

According to the U. S. Weather Bureau in Kimberly, the record low of 31 degrees for August in Twin Falls occurred on Aug. 31, 1968. A reading of 45 was recorded here today.

In 1969 record high temperatures for August were set at 101 on Aug. 22; 102 on the 23rd and 24th, and 103 on Aug. 25.

Twin Falls recorded an extremely wet August in 1968 with 2.77 inches of moisture. The normal precipitation for the month is 0.17.

This would mean the rapid growth that has characterized the college may have ended.

According to CSI director of admissions Jerry Meyerhoeffer, a student body of slightly over 3,000 full and part-time students is expected when classes begin Monday. This would compare with 2,942 students at last year's peak.

CSI apparently is not alone in projecting a slowdown in enrollments. Earlier in the week, Milton Small, Idaho executive director of higher education, said reports from state colleges projected enrollments would remain unchanged or increase only slightly.

CSI's Meyerhoeffer echoed Small's prediction. He said people he had contacted from other colleges "think they're doing great if they hold their own."

"I think we'll hold our own and probably increase a little," he said.

CSI enrollment had grown faster than any other Idaho college since it opened its doors in 1965. Since then its enrollment grew to about five times its initial enrollment.

The largest growth took place in the college's second year, as enrollment nearly doubled, to over 1,100 students.

In the next two years, growth was rapid, jumping one fourth in 1967 and more than a third

US family food costs hit peak during July

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With retail beef and pork prices breaking records, the cost of a typical family food market basket jumped 1.8 per cent to an all-time high in July, the Agriculture Department reported today.

The monthly advance, the sharpest since February, was partly due to normal seasonal factors. After adjustment for seasonal variation, officials said, the increase would be 0.7 per cent.

Despite the increase, department food economists today reaffirmed their belief that consumers have already seen the worst of the year's price gains, and may get some relief at supermarket counters this fall.

A spokesman said the July rise had been expected, and there was no reason to waver from a published forecast earlier this month that by fall "the index may show some seasonal decline" because of rising beef supplies and declining fresh produce prices.

The department's monthly food price report today said the retail cost of a typical market basket of farm-produced foods, bought for a family of four, rose from an annual rate of $1,299 in June to $1,322 in July. The $23 gain lifted the cost to 4.5 per cent above a year earlier.

Retail beef prices rose to a record $1.173 a pound in July because of a sharp increase in supermarket margins. But most of the month's price gains were due to higher farm prices for hogs, frying chickens, eggs, potatoes and onions, the report indicated.

But the final session of the Republican National Convention convened only nine minutes late and went off on schedule.

Police said the park, headquarters of the protesters, was being peacefully emptied as the young people who spent up to two weeks there struck their tents and left as their city-issued permit expired at noon.

Protesters drift from camp quietly

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — The ragged demonstrators who came to Miami Beach to shut down the Republican Convention drifted out of their Flamingo Park campground today, their efforts defeated by more than 1,000 arrests and choking clouds of tear gas.

The estimated 4,000 young, antiwar protesters gave everything they had Wednesday night, tying up traffic, pounding on cars and cursing and threatening delegates for blocks along the resort city's beachside strip and outside the Convention Hall.

Fast CSI growth pace may slow up

TWIN FALLS — The gush of growth at the College of Southern Idaho may slow to a trickle this year.

Although final enrollment figures are not yet available, pre-registration trends suggest the college's enrollment will be about the same or only slightly larger than last year.

This would mean the rapid expansion that has characterized the college may have ended.

According to CSI director of admissions Jerry Meyerhoeffer, a student body of slightly over 3,000 full and part-time students is expected when classes begin Monday. This would compare with 2,942 students at last year's peak.

CSI apparently is not alone in projecting a slowdown in enrollments. Earlier in the week, Milton Small, Idaho executive director of higher education, said reports from state colleges projected enrollments would remain unchanged or increase only slightly.

CSI's Meyerhoeffer echoed Small's prediction. He said people he had contacted from other colleges "think they're doing great if they hold their own."

"I think we'll hold our own and probably increase a little," he said.

CSI enrollment had grown faster than any other Idaho college since it opened its doors in 1965. Since then its enrollment grew to about five times its initial enrollment.

The largest growth took place in the college's second year, as enrollment nearly doubled, to over 1,100 students.

In the next two years, growth was rapid, jumping one fourth in 1967 and more than a third the year following. From 1968 until 1971, the growth rate hovered in the neighborhood of 15 per cent each year.

This year, should the enrollment peak at 3,150, enrollment would rise only 7 per cent. The increase could be less.

Meyerhoeffer suggests that the trend toward leveling college enrollments in the state may be the result of several factors:

Reports of many college graduates find it difficult to find jobs. On the other hand, much publicity has been heard "about how you can find a lot of jobs without going to school."

Meyerhoeffer is skeptical about the claim: "I would like to debate that with somebody." He said education does correlate with employment and income.

The draft threat has been removed. "Four or five years ago every young man coming in to school was somewhat concerned about the draft, which he isn't any more," Meyerhoeffer said.

"However," he said, "many returning servicemen are taking college courses, somewhat counterbalancing the effect of the draft removal."

He said there has been no perceptible change in the ratio of men to women students. The ratio has remained at about 58-42.

Looking to the future, Meyerhoeffer predicts that the slump in enrollment will last only a year. "After that," he says, "growth should resume. The rate of growth probably won't be as high as during the college's foundation years," he said.

Nixon savoring feel of victory

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—It all seems too good to be true for Richard M. Nixon.

He leaves today on a day-long, hedge-hopping (Chicago, Ulica, Mich., San Diego) journey to his San Clemente home with no reason to doubt the chant of "four more years, four more years" which greeted his renomination.

At this stage of the campaign—some 10 weeks before the election—Nixon must be as prohibitive a favorite as was President Lyndon B. Johnson when he defended against Barry M. Goldwater in 1964.

It is a remarkable situation for a politician whose career has been marked by almost as many defeats as victories.

Going into the campaign, Nixon's achievement rating is at its peak.

And his edge, in the polls, over George S. McGovern, the Democratic presidential candidate, is so large, it has the markings of a landslide.

But what campaign manager Clark MacGregor likes about the polls is the degree of unity among Republican voters.

MacGregor cites a Minnesota poll, taken by the Minneapolis Tribune, which showed Nixon getting the votes of 96 per cent of the Republicans. In one news conference, he called the unanimity both "unprecedented" and "unbelievable."

A Gallup Poll shows Nixon leading McGovern 57-32; a New

Analysis

York Times Tri-State Poll shows Nixon ahead by almost the same margin in New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut, and a Time Magazine poll gives the President huge leads in states with 10 or more electoral votes.

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, who plucked off five southern states remains paralyzed from the waist-down and cannot run, giving the President a seeming sweep of the South.

In contrast, McGovern has had nothing but troubles to add to the troubles he began with.

He was forced to rid himself of Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton as his vice-presidential candidate in a manner that could only have cost him support; he has been unable to make peace with labor; he denied, then admitted, he sent Pierre Salinger to Paris to confer with the North Vietnamese; he is having staff problems. McGovern has all but squandered the five-week edge in beginning his campaign.

And if money is a deciding factor, MacGregor plans to put $5 million to $8 million into the campaign. It is a figure that McGovern, despite innovative fund-raising techniques, will find difficult to match.

But there are 10 weeks left, and Nixon has a history of dissipating leads.

At the start of the 1968 campaign, Nixon held a comfortable lead (although not as large as today) over Hubert H. Humphrey and barely won. Some political mathematicians claimed that if the campaign had run another week, Nixon would have lost.

McGovern raps confab

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI)—Sen. George McGovern denounced the Republican National Convention today as a "sleek and cynical spectacle" that hid President Nixon's real record from the public.

"Just hours ago, the Nixon-Agnew ticket accepted a nomination for a second term from the most incredibly closed and controlled national convention in American history," he said.

"Armed security guards were even assigned to watch the secretaries who were typing the Republican platform—after seeing that platform I can understand why they wanted to keep it a secret," he said. "The Democratic convention was open to the people. The Republican convention was a place for the President to hide."

McGovern came here to cap a three-day swing through the Midwest with a speech to the American Federation of Teachers, the AFL-CIO union which is growing in strength among the nation's educators.

He also scheduled a speech here to the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW), carrying the same message he gave to the American Legion in Chicago Wednesday: that the Vietnam war was harming national security by draining off badly needed resources and destroying the faith of Americans in the military.

While he was in Chicago, McGovern met with Mayor Richard J. Daley and at a news conference afterwards the mayor again gave his grudging support to the Democratic nominee.

Daley did not seem particularly enthusiastic when the two men appeared together in public for the first time since the McGovern-dominated Miami Beach convention, in which the mayor's Chicago delegation was denied seats.

The mayor predicted, however, that McGovern would carry Illinois in November and McGovern said the convention was now "past history." He said he was "satisfied that I have the total support of the mayor."

Russians lodge official protest

REYKJAVIK (UPI)—The Russians lodged an official protest with World Chess Championship officials today, demanding that they return the three rows of seats which they took out at the request of Bobby Fischer.

The seats, filled with what Fischer considered overly noisy spectators, were removed when he issued an ultimatum—either the seats were taken out or he would not continue his championship match with Russian Boris Spassky.

Today's 10th game was scheduled for 5 p.m. (1 p.m. EDT) with Fischer playing white, which moves first.

Fischer holds a 10-7 lead and needs another 2.5 points to take the crown. Spassky needs five points in the seven remaining games to retain it.

While chess experts argued among themselves whether Spassky had made a booboo yesterday which cost him a draw, Russian Grandmaster Syfim Geller lodged today's official protest about the seats. Geller fired off an open letter two days ago asking that the playing hall be checked for any "electronic devices or chemical substances" Fischer might be using on Spassky. Today he told arbiter Lothar Schmid the Russians were "against the changes in the playing hall."

"We want those three or four rows of seats back in place," Russian Grandmaster Nikolaj Krogius, another of Spassky's four seconds, said.

Schmid, who was investigating the playing hall with Icelandic organizer Gudmundur Thorarinnsson on Geller's earlier request, said he received the Russian protest and "I think the chairs will be back where they were."

Proposal opinions differ

HELENA, Mont. (UPI)—Former newscaster Chet Huntley and Montana Sen. Lee Metcalf and Mike Mansfield, both Democrats, are lining up on opposing sides as a hearing on a wilderness proposal draws near. Huntley's Big Sky Resort announced Wednesday it's supporting a road across the Spanish Peaks area south of Bozeman, Mont. A spokesman said the road would give the resort better access to southwestern Montana.

Some local officials also support the road across the 11,000-foot high range connecting the Gallatin Canyon with the Madison Valley.

Mansfield and Metcalf are supporting Metcalf's Spanish Peaks Wilderness Bill. That bill would set up a 113,000-acre wilderness area and rule out the number one route choice for the controversial road across the Madison Range.

Huntley is supporting a smaller wilderness proposal offered by Rep. Dick Shoup, R-Mont. Shoup's proposal would permit the road.

The Senate public lands subcommittee, chaired by Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, will hold a hearing on the Metcalf bill Monday in Bozeman.

Suit reason questioned

BOISE (UPI) — Federal Judge Ray McNichols has questioned why the Idaho Congress of Parents and Teachers has brought its endowment fund suit into U.S. District Court for Idaho.

While hearing oral arguments in the case Wednesday, the judge took note that two state agencies are involved in it—the Land Board and the Parks Department.

"Federal administrators don't seem to be outraged about this matter," McNichols observed.

After hearing arguments, McNichols gave each side an additional 10 days to file written briefs in the case.

Jerome man due in court

TWIN FALLS — Cleve LeRoy Starry, 26, Route 3, Jerome, was scheduled for appearance in Magistrate Court today on three felony charges.

He was taken into custody by Twin Falls city and county officers late Wednesday and charged with two counts of rape and one of burglary.

Capt. Tim Qualls of the Twin Falls Police Department said the man was arrested about 6 p.m. in Twin Falls. He is charged with the rape of a 15-year-old Twin Falls girl on Aug. 14; burglary of a Twin Falls home on Aug. 12 and a second rape involving a 14-year-old Twin Falls girl on Aug. 23.

Starry was placed in custody of the Twin Falls sheriff pending court action. He was confined to the county jail.

Qualls said the arrest followed investigation by the city and county officers.

The PTA has challenged use of public school endowment lands for public parks, claiming it violates by the Idaho Constitution and the state's administrative act.

Attorney Kenneth Puralay argued that both the constitution and the admissions act charge the land board with administering school endowment property.

He urged the endowment fund be compensated for use of endowment land for parks.

Assistant Attorney General Don Kniekrehn argued, however, that no transfer of title to the land has taken place. He said only the administration has changed.

This does not give the Parks Department any right to sell or lease the lands, he said, adding the Department of Public Lands still has that power.

Ex-Idaho aide named

BOISE (UPI) — Former state health administrator Terrell O. Carver has been named health services and medical director of the Piedmont Health Care Corp. in Greenville, S. C.

Dr. Carver, who resigned his state post earlier this year, will be responsible for the standards of medical care offered by Piedmont.

His first task in the new position will be to develop a health services program and recruit physicians and allied health staff for the corporation's primary health care center.

Wrecks kill 2

WELLS, Nev. (UPI) — Two California men died Wednesday in separate accidents in north-eastern Nevada.

Fred Mandel, 16, Santa Clara, was killed when his car overturned on Interstate 80 about 14 miles from Wells. The highway patrol said he apparently fell asleep. Charles Todd, a passenger, was hurt.

Adolph Frias, 18, Roseville, was killed when the car in which he was riding ran off U.S. 40 and struck a culvert 12 miles west of Wendover. Injured were his sisters, Bernice Frias and Cecilia Crowley, wife of the driver, who was apparently not hurt.

On-site inspection for A-tests asked

GENEVA (UPI) — The United States said today it is prepared to accept a ban on all nuclear testing as soon as it can be assured the Soviet Union is unable to run the risk of disguising clandestine underground explosions as natural earthquakes.

Joseph Martin Jr., the American negotiator at the 25-nation Geneva Disarmament Conference, said there are about 25 large earth tremors a year in Russia which are detected by long-range seismic instruments but which cannot be traced to either natural causes or a nuclear test.

The only way to be sure that these events are not tests is to conduct an on-site inspection, Martin told the conference.

"The United States is prepared to give up the advantages derived from nuclear weapon testing only if we can be assured that other treaty partners are abiding by the same restrictions," he said.

Even if all treaty partners abided by all the rules, Martin said, a lack of adequate verification capabilities "could foster uncertainties about whether other nuclear powers were actually complying with the treaty in all respects."

Support said need in new youth home

HAILEY — Community support is the first essential for establishing a home for problem youth.

That was emphasized Tuesday during a panel discussion on operating a youth home, sponsored by "The Other Side of Time," an organization which hopes to set up a home for pre-delinquent boys in Blaine County.

During the discussion, Carl Christopherson and Kevin Kirk, from Youth Services Bureau, Boise, and Farrell Brown, of the Community Institute for Mental Health, discussed the variety of youth that are referred and the relative advantage and disadvantages of placement for more than 30 days in a foster home.

The speakers said that taking a youth from his own home for less than 30 days does not break the family ties that need to be strengthened, but that a month is not long enough to make a meaningful change in a youth's attitude and behavior.

The head of the mental health division of the Department of Health, Jack Steneck, discussed with the directors of the proposed home the relationship a group home would have to mental health and state agencies. At the present, a home such as planned already in operation could qualify for $8 to $10 a day per child if it provided essential social services.

Steneck said, "I think that all regions would benefit from this type of program." He said the home would alleviate the problem of "throwing some of these kids in jail," or sending them to St. Anthony or to the State Hospital South.

"You are providing a program here within the framework of your own community," Steneck said.

Home organizer Janet Small said the planned home would be "anti-institution." "If you can give these kids the right kind of care at a critical point in their lives, you can do much to prevent dysfunction in their later lives," she said.

Miami Beach mayor scorns politicians

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Mayor Chuck Hall of Miami Beach said today "politicians are usually free loaders" and as far as he is concerned, they can keep their national conventions.

Hall said that as long as he was mayor, he would not try to get either political party to hold another nominating convention here again, unless the federal government picks up the tab.

Hall said the city received about $1 million in funds of various kinds to pay for the just-ended Republican National

Message From The White House

MIAMI BEACH — The Nixon years was exposed when Rep. Jack Kemp, a freshman conservative from upstate New York, suddenly and surprisingly appeared at the Fontainebleau Hotel. His appearance was surprising because he had cancelled out that day as a pro-reform witness before the Republican rules committee, pleading the press of duties in Washington. It was sudden because Kemp had planned to be in Washington that night playing in the annual Congressional baseball game.

Instead, Kemp was summoned, along with Sen. John Tower of Texas, from Washington to Miami Beach to be briefed on a new allocation formula for delegates to the 1975 convention which would benefit the conservative South and west and hurt the liberal Northeast. That plan had been secretly drafted by conservative state party leaders, with convert help from Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's staff (and President Nixon's own operatives as interested observers). It was unveiled the next morning by Tower and Kemp as "the Miami compromise."

The selection of a New Yorker as a co-sponsor attempted to undercut a rival allocation scheme backed by the New York Republican party. Moreover, Kemp is on intimate terms with the White House and particularly Herbert Klein, the Nixon administration's propaganda chief.

Thus, Kemp's sudden intervention was a signal from the White House that it favors the conservative delegation, formula but does not yet openly support it.

Preoccupation here over 1976 stems from heavy Republican confidence regarding 1972 and Agnew's probable bid for the Presidential succession. It was first thought the struggle here would center on McGovern-style delegate reforms attempting to pack the 1976 convention with anti-Agnew blacks and youths.

When it became clear Republicans would never swallow a McGovernite quota system, the focus turned to the new delegate allocation formula for 1976 required by Federal court order. A formula devised by party leaders from New York, Michigan, Minnesota and Rhode Island would make the 1976 convention larger and more liberal than any in the party's history.

Accordingly, Agnew's lieutenants were deeply involved in preparing, as an alternative, the Tower-Kemp plan.

But the fight transcends Agnew. One conservative state chairman vigorously pushing the Tower-Kemp formula told us he does not consider Agnew electable in 1976 and would prefer somebody else. Nevertheless, he bitterly opposes any leftward shift in the power balance.

That is not far from private views by Nixon campaign advisers. They fear any delegate formula leading to nomination of a liberal who could provoke a disastrous third-party bid by conservative Republicans. At this writing, Nixon campaign aide Harry Flemming is only a very sympathetic observer. But Mr. Nixon might yet decisively and openly endorse the Tower-Kemp formula.

Even Mr. Nixon's new alliance with Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York was shaken a little. Rockefeller's state chairman, Charles T. Lanigan, was put out by Kemp's use by Nixon-Agnew forces. When Lanigan objected to calling the Tower-Kemp formula "the Miami compromise," Tower replied the name was suggested by Kemp, a former pro football quarterback. "He's known to be clever at the hidden ball play," an unsmiling Lanigan replied.

Maneuverings for 1976 multiplied. Republican national committeewoman Cecil Harden of Indiana, a member of the rules subcommittee considering delegate allocations, was inclined to the Tower-Kemp formula. She promptly was urged by Indiana national committeeman Keith Bulen to oppose it. The reason: Mayor Richard Lugar of Indianapolis, a 1976 dark horse possibility, would benefit from a larger, more liberal convention.

Such maneuverings were possible because the Nixon intervention was indirect. What's more, Mr. Nixon seems to care less about all this than his political aides. These aides were privately denigrating a McGovern-style commission to consider future delegate reforms. Less than 24 hours later, the President endorsed a Congressional group's reform package containing just such a commission. That's not the message from the White House the President's men here were trying to convey.

The Winner

Richard Nixon is on his way, following the Republican sessions in Miami, and it looks like he is certain to spend another four years in the White House.

Opinion polls to date show unprecedented leads for President Nixon over opponent Senator George McGovern. No presidential candidate in history, the political pros say, has been so far ahead at this stage of the game.

McGovern, at the highest point, is given only seven states and some polls do not give him even that number.

If President Nixon is the winner like most people expect him to be, the flood wave will be so great he will take many state and national candidates with him. In fact, the Republicans will once more regain control of the U.S. Senate. If all this is true then James McClure will easily be the next Senator from Idaho.

It looks like it is going to be a Republican year in the nation and, of course, in Idaho. — OAK.

One Time?

There are a lot of people who now have the opinion Cecil Andrus will be a one-term governor. They contend he won the office he now holds not because of his program, or what he had to offer, but because the voters simply did not want Don Samuelson to be around for another term.

Right now it looks as though the next governor of the state might just come from Magic Valley in the person of Jack Murphy or Pete Cenarrusa. Both have indicated it wouldn't take much to convince them they should make the race when the time is ripe. It could be said they are actively seeking the job. They both know it is not too early to spread the seeds of backing.

The governor, of course, will seek another term. But his competition is shaping at this early date and his mistakes are being entered in the little black book for use when the time is ripe. — OAK.

Jake With Us

Who says American voters never have a choice, only an echo? A fellow named Jacob J. Gordon of Worcester, Mass., has declared himself a candidate for president on the National Government ticket with a platform that makes those of every other party look like exercises in nambly-pambyism.

Stating that "all Americans and the entire world realizes (sic) the present existing federal government of the United States is totally, completely and hopelessly corrupt from top to bottom," Gordon offers a platform which includes the following pledges:

- (1) The complete removal of American troops from Vietnam within 72 hours.
- (2) Guaranteed $10,000 earned minimum annual income for all families and $500 minimum monthly pension for all elderly.
- (3) Replacement of all federal employees with new employees.
- (4) Bar all lawyers from serving as judges in any court.
- (5) Abolish the national debt.

Day Of Memories

Thirty-three years ago — on Sept. 3, 1939 — Britain declared war on Germany. It was a reluctant decision. There opened on that September day a chapter in history the end of which has not yet been written. Out of that war there emerged new patterns of power.

In 1939, the Great Powers went to war. That meant Britain, France and Germany. Six years later the expression meant something quite different. It meant the United States and Soviet Russia.

But this was only dimly seen 33 years ago, if it was seen at all. Hitler was not alone in underrating the red army.

Britain knew that it had nothing to gain in war and much to lose. The conflict was to confirm this in lives lost, war damage and the loss of practically all that was left of the huge fortunes in overseas investments that diligent and adventurous forebears had accumulated.

As the anniversaries of great events come around, those who took part in them and those who lived through the items in which they took place, recall them as though they belonged to a period longer than a third of a century ago, for this is an entirely different age — the nuclear and space age.

It is also the jet age. The almost 17 days it took to circle the world by propeller plane in 1939 has shrunk to less than three days in commercial jets.

But the terrible legacy of war remains. In solving one great problem others were created, which is the ironic history of sacrifice and conflict.

Mr. Spectator thought all you folks who were involved in World War II would do well to remember September 3 — and, perhaps, just what you were doing back then when you first heard the word that war was starting.

AHOY, MA'AM!

In the days of full sail, women on board almost always presaged trouble. Storms and mishaps at sea were attributed to them, and in swashbuckling novels the captain always with drawn sword defended ladies against superstitious crews.

All but the rattle has changed. Women are being trained to serve aboard naval vessels in other than a nursing capacity and one day may join the command echelon. A lieutenant stationed at Lakehurst, N.J. is the first woman administrative officer ever assigned to an American crew, and it ought not to be surprising if a gal were honored someday for running a tight ship.

No need to be concerned about the male reaction. Traditions are adjustable when the Navy decrees. And to worried wives, Mr. Spectator would give words of comfort:

They keep a guy awfully busy aboard ship these days.

Maybe 7 States?

MIAMI BEACH (NEA) — Republicans gathered here to nominate the Nixon-Agnew ticket think it may win in a sweep over McGovern-Shriver this fall, and they're trying to avoid getting giddy over the prospect.

A party leader from a large eastern state told me:

"I don't want to be overconfident, but I find it hard to be underconfident."

I ran the 50-state map with a veteran GOP elect oral-vote counter, and spot-checked about 15 states, including seven of the most populous 10. There is just no bad news at the moment for President Nixon, though in a few big states, most particularly California, the situation is considered somewhat shaky.

The people I canvassed are without exception realist. Not one expects Mr. Nixon to hold the kind of 29-point-plus lead he has in the national polls, but, in all but a few cases, they can't see Mr. Nixon sliding far enough to lose their states.

They know all about this business of Mr. Nixon starting out with his leads and then frittering them away. They think his support among disaffected Democrats is firmer this time, and less likely to flow back across the line.

The Republican who gave me the 50-state rundown thinks that McGovern today may be leading in no more than seven states: Hawaii, California, South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, West Virginia and Massachusetts. And this judgement gives the Democratic nominee the benefit of serious doubts in at least California and Minnesota.

The seven states have a total electoral vote of 94, with 270 the number required for victory in November.

California might better be rated a tossup. Yet, despite excellent early organization work there, the Nixon people think it is the big state they are most likely to lose.

By now the word is spread wide that the respected Minnesota poll currently give Mr. Nixon a 58-51 edge over McGovern, with 40 per cent of 1968 Humphrey voters saying they intend to back Mr. Nixon. Several Minnesota leaders in both parties say, however, that this situation is pretty sure to close up in the weeks ahead.

That stunning generalization about the whole 11-state South going for Mr. Nixon still seems to be valid, though some Democrats tapped earlier think 26-vote Texas can be salvaged. Spot checking here suggests all the rest of it is lost to McGovern.

One key Republican doubts he will spend much time and money in the South, though there may be a lot of hopeful talk and a few showcase trips. The Republicans can't see Nixon-Agnew losing any of the eight mountain states, or more than South Dakota among the five in the plains area. In the Pacific zone, Oregon and Washington are trending Nixonward, and the President gets a lift in Alaska from the well-fixed re-election candidacy of Sen. Ted Stevens.

In the Middle West, GOP sources think Illinois and Michigan look very good. Ohio better than earlier but still troublesome. Wisconsin seems McGovern's best bet.

With swing-state Connecticut strong for Mr. Nixon today, only Massachusetts in New England is being rated McGovern. The East's big three — New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania — all fall in Mr. Nixon's column right now. There is real fear a couple of these might shift later on as McGovern narrows the gap. But no one I talked to in this city thinks such a shift would signal a winning McGovern surge.

Bedside

The bedside manners of most people and some doctors are atrocious.

Very many sickroom visitors are careless, insensitive or stupid.

You can be too sick to move, too weak to talk — but you're not deaf.

Yet doctors are sometimes guilty and family members are frequently guilty of expressing pity, hopelessness — and even self-pity — in the audible presence of the ailing kin.

I've heard loving wives say, "I don't know what I'll do if he lingers; it's so expensive!"

That sick guy, too weak to protest, just raised an eyebrow and died.

So he was dying anyway. So what; we're all dying!

All of us past the age of 19 are beginning to reveal the many metastases of the incurable cancer called "time."

But the minute one of us is flat on his back, everybody starts counting to 10. You can kill anybody prematurely by compounding his frailty with despair.

Sir William Osler, one of the great teachers of medicine, stressed: "It is more important to know what sort of a patient has the disease than what sort of disease the patient has."

The old-fashioned doctor had little medicine that was worth anything, but his bedside manner was of immeasurable psychological benefit.

Today's doctors are too busy for that. They leave it to the clergy and family to hypo the patient's morale. Some do. Surely everybody wants to.

Maybe the doctor should hand the family a list of suggested "do's" and "don'ts" for visiting hours.

Don't compare symptoms: "He looks better, but then Aunt Minnie looked better just before."

Don't discuss symptoms or vital signs except when those symptoms or signs are encouraging.

Don't refer to his ailment, whatever, as "another case of..."

Don't worry the patient with any talk of expenses or other problems at home.

Don't — in heaven's name don't — discuss funeral arrangements unless the patient initiates such discussion.

Don't mention illnesses of others; past or present.

Do — keep the patient as comfortable as possible; brush hair, fluff pillows, straighten sheets.

Do stay cheerful — at least pleasant.

The voice of a loved one, penetrating the consciousness of a comatose patient, comforts, reassures, may heal.

Do discuss the patient's life situation before the illness, particularly its more pleasant aspects.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

I'm Anemic

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was told by a nurse that I was anemic. She told me there was no cure except to eat lots of food with iron and take vitamins plus iron, but she didn't tell me what foods have iron.

Furthermore, iron and vitamins are NOT the only cure for anemia.

Anemia means lack of sufficient iron in the blood; that's true. But it is because of sheer lack of iron, or is it because I have two small children and was told last week that my baby's blood count was lower than normal. I don't want my baby to become anemic. Please tell me some food that have iron. Mrs. B.D.

Wish I knew just a little more about you. If the nurse just thought you looked pale — that's not enough for a diagnosis of there's a lack of red cells, which are the ones that carry iron?

Is it pernicious anemia, which is a lack of iron will help? Yet pernicious anemia can be corrected with vitamin B-12.

Is some chronic infection causing the anemia? Or some subtle but continuing blood loss? Or is some blood disorder involved?

BERRY'S WORLD

"What worries me is, if things don't start getting better for McGovern, he may get a tremendous number of 'sympathy votes'!"

Nixon vows defense budget trim

CHICAGO (UPI)—President Nixon opened his re-election campaign today with a pledge to trim the fat but not the muscle from the nation's defense budget and charged that Democrat George S. McGovern's programs would leave the nation a second-rate power.

He urged that the "honest but misguided voices of those who say we should weaken America today and naively hope for peace tomorrow" be rejected and said the budget cuts proposed by his Democratic opponent would make it impossible to assure peace in the world or negotiate an arms curb.

"Economy always, weakness never," Nixon told the annual convention of the American Legion as he launched a cutting attack against McGovern's proposed $30 billion defense cut-back, his willingness to take a lenient attitude toward draft evaders and his offer "to unilaterally withdraw from Vietnam."

"We have been able to bring home half-a-million American fighting men from Vietnam—and we have done it without selling out, our allies, without surrendering to our enemies and without abandoning 'prisoners of war and those missing in action,'" he said.

The visit here was the first of a three-stop swing across the nation en route to the Western White House at San Clemente, Calif. during which Nixon also pressed his attack on the Democrats for failing to deal with the school busing problem.

Nixon claimed he already had started a substantial program in controlling defense spending which now imposes the smallest economic burden on the country in 20 years.

Without naming his opponent, Nixon said the proposals McGovern advocates—cutting the strategic bomber force by 80 per cent, cutting back on the number of aircraft carriers, withdrawing troops from NATO and trimming funds for weapons development—would "risk the safety of the next generation of Americans."

"We have economized and will continue to economize on military spending whenever and wherever it is safe to do so," Nixon said. "But I never have gambled—and I never will gamble—with the safety of the American people under a false banner of economy. Lasting peace is built only on strength."

He was scornful of those who ridicule military service and attacked McGovern's stand on draft resisters.

"To those who try to make false moral heroes of a few hundred deserters and draft dodgers, I say the real heroes are the two and a half million men who served in Vietnam, gallant men who are not ashamed of their love of country; brave men who did not desert their nation's flag in time of need; heroes who stand just as tall as any who fought at Normandy or Iwo Jima."

Use proper techniques when cooking in aluminum. Spills and boilovers should be wiped with a damp cloth immediately. Don't give food deposits time to harden. After utensils have cooled, rinse it immediately.

LINED UP like children waiting to see Santa Claus, Republican Convention delegates wait to shake the hand of President Nixon after his acceptance speech Wednesday night. (UPI)

1,000 plus delegates push, shove to shake Nixon's hand

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The General Accounting Office (GAO), congressional watchdog agency, withheld a report on the handling of Republican campaign funds after conferring with the party's chief fund raiser, Maurice H. Stans, it was learned today.

Washington sources said Elmer B. Staats, comptroller general of the United States and head of the GAO, felt he needed more answers to questions about the use of campaign funds before he could approve the report.

"Staats is a very careful guy and he wants to make very certain the report is correct before he signs his name," one source said. A definite date has not been set for release of the report.

Sources said that Stans, who is attending the Republican National Convention, talked with GAO officials by telephone Tuesday before a decision was made to delay release of the audit findings. Release had been expected Tuesday.

The GAO investigation was sparked by the alleged attempt of five men to bug the Democratic National Committee headquarters in the early morning hours of June 17. The suspects later were linked to Nixon's re-election committee.

Funds from the GOP's Committee to Re-elect President Nixon allegedly wound up in the Miami bank account of Bernard Barker, one of the arrested suspects.

Meanwhile, Stans said he "had nothing to do" with the break-in. "That is absolutely my position and when the grand jury concludes its case, that'll be very evident," Stans said.

No prediction

HONOLULU (UPI)—Pollster Burns W. Roper said Wednesday that President Nixon may be the odds-on favorite to win the November election, but "I would not make a prediction as to the outcome."

The president of Roper Research Associates told the American Society of Association Executives that if he had to bet he'd pick Nixon and give odds as well.

"But I would bet no more than I could afford to lose, because I would have bet, and given odds, eight months ago that George McGovern would not get the nomination," he said.

Campaign funds release withheld

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—More than a thousand persons pushed, swore, groaned and shouted to get to shake the hands of President and Mrs. Nixon when they left the podium to greet the delegates who renominated him.

Standing in front of the Presidential seal, Nixon and his wife, Pat, Wednesday night patiently pumped the hand of each person who got up the stairs, including an elderly woman who had to be held up to keep from being pushed to the floor and a child carried to the stairs on his father's shoulders.

Most told him how proud they were to meet him, that he would carry their particular state and that he gave a great speech. Some gave him gifts, ranging from a lei to a ballpoint pen.

Tatsu Ogawa, an 80-year-old Japanese Hawaiian who has known Nixon for 20 years and was a guest at Julio and David Eisenhower's wedding, presented the President with a red carnation lei he had brought to give Nixon.

Doreen Allison, of South Dakota, gave him a large, green button reading, "I'm from South Dakota. McGovern doesn't speak for me." She said she told Nixon he was leading 2 to 1 in Sen. George S. McGovern's home state "and he was extremely happy."

Mayor Richard Lugar of Indianapolis went through the line and told Nixon the decision to greet the delegates "was a great idea. It's a really tremendous personal effort on his part."

Nixon originally had planned to shake the hand of every delegate but decided before his speech to cut it short.

He shook hands for nearly an hour on the small platform built immediately in front of the podium bearing the Presidential seal and the line was cut off. Mrs. Nixon stumbled forward jokingly as if she couldn't stand any more while hundreds of persons jammed at the foot of the stairs cried, "Oh, no, no, no," and began a chant, "please don't go."

Using a microphone lowered for him from the podium, Nixon explained that he had a light day planned for Thursday but told them a light day for him meant traveling across the United States making five visits.

A thought for the day: British poet Robert Southwell, said, "When fortune smiles, I smile to think how quickly she will frown."

Leaves party

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Last December, Nathaniel Abraham, a black Columbia, S.C., publisher, announced he was leaving the Democratic party and joining the Republicans.

Wednesday, he said he was leaving the Republican party because it was racist.

"The party is racist, both at the national level and in the state executive committee," Abraham said. "I have been trying to get the party organized for Nixon but the door is shut in my face. Abraham said the Republicans were campaigning among blacks in South Carolina in virtual secrecy to avoid antagonizing whites."

"I don't think a successful campaign can be run for Nixon and Sen. Strom Thurmond (R-S.C.) without being open," Abraham said.

He said he would not rejoin the Democrats but would become an Independent.

Abraham's charges of racism were denied by the Rep.-U.S. Grant Lovett, a black South Carolina alternate delegate to the GOP convention.

Lovett is chairman of the black division of his state's Committee for Re-election of the President, and he acknowledged he is running a very quiet campaign.

POW relatives brand platform

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—The largest organization of POW relatives has branded as "too inflexible" the Republican party's platform plank on Vietnam.

The National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia said in a telegram to President Nixon Wednesday that the platform plank appeared to represent a "hardening" of Nixon's May 8 peace proposal.

The organization said the plank could hinder rather than speed the release of prisoners.

Nixon on May 8 offered to withdraw U.S. troops from Vietnam four months after the imposition of an internationally supervised cease-fire throughout Indochina and the return of the prisoners.

The platform insists there should be a full accounting of the missing before all U.S. troops are withdrawn.

The league also demands an accounting for the missing but said in its telegram it would be difficult or impossible to achieve in the timetable set out in the platform. The result would be to block a settlement and delay return of the prisoners, the telegram said.

The section of the platform states: "We insist that, before all American forces are withdrawn from Vietnam, American prisoners must be returned and a full accounting made of the missing in action and those who have died in enemy hands."

The league telegram stated: "Apprehensive that platform indicates hardening of May 8 proposal by our government. Afraid that paragraph relating to American prisoners is too inflexible and indicates that all POWs will remain interned until all missing men are accounted for. Release and accounting could begin simultaneously."

by 1,345 GOP Convention delegates with the sole opposition of one vote for television commentator David Brinkley. A black delegate, Odell H. Richmond, 26, of Pine Bluff, Ark., abstained from voting because he said Agnew was a racist.

Interior Secretary Robert Morton, a fellow Marylander, placed Agnew's name in nomination, declaring that he was a man whose name had become a "household word."

Meanwhile, UPI learned that a group of Agnew's staunchest conservative backers had held several strategy meetings aimed at helping Agnew capture the presidential nomination four years from now.

The overwhelming defeat of a liberal move to broaden the number of delegates from the big urban states, according to many of Agnew's supporters, proved that they maintained enough power in the GOP to put him at the head of the ticket in 1976.

While Agnew publicly will say only that he is "keeping my options open," an associate quoted him saying "I wouldn't put up with this job for another four years if I weren't interested in seeking the top one."

Agnew attacks various Demo plans in acceptance speech

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Attacking the busing, defense and Vietnam policies of Democrat George McGovern, Spiro T. Agnew accepted re-nomination for vice president Wednesday while his conservative supporters laid plans to nominate him for President in 1976.

Setting perhaps the tenor of his forthcoming campaign as President Nixon's running mate, the 53-year-old former Maryland governor denounced McGovern for advocating what he called "piecemeal, inconsistent and illusory" programs.

"Do we follow Senator McGovern's proposals for abandoning the South Vietnamese to the invaders from Hanoi and for trusting or 'begging' the North Vietnamese to return our prisoners of war?" Agnew asked the delegates who shouted, "No."

Agnew's place on the ticket was overwhelmingly approved

Meanwhile, UPI learned that a group of Agnew's staunchest conservative backers had held several strategy meetings aimed at helping Agnew capture the presidential nomination four years from now.

The overwhelming defeat of a liberal move to broaden the number of delegates from the big urban states, according to many of Agnew's supporters, proved that they maintained enough power in the GOP to put him at the head of the ticket in 1976.

While Agnew publicly will say only that he is "keeping my options open," an associate quoted him saying "I wouldn't put up with this job for another four years if I weren't interested in seeking the top one."

Idaho firm feels environmentalist pressure on new Wyoming plant

By DWIGHT JENSEN
Special to the Times-News
ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo. — Idaho Power Co. is building its first steam generating plant — and feeling the pressure of environmentalists as a result.

About 35 miles east by northeast of Rock Springs, near a wide spot in the road called Point of Rocks, construction is at its peak on the Jim Bridger Power Plant.

The first unit is to go on the line within two years, if the job stays on schedule.

Later in the decade, when the plant is complete, it will include three units generating 1.5 million volts — half a million for Idaho Power and a full million for Pacific Power and Light Co., which is sharing the cost of the plant.

The Wyoming site was selected because it is close to the raw materials. The plant is being built adjacent to a large bed of low-grade coal that can be strip-mined at comparatively little cost. A 42-mile pipeline will bring water from the Green River. Burning coal and boiling water will form steam to power the generating turbines.

As recently as its 1971 annual report to stockholders, Idaho Power was boasting of being an all-hydro company, and publishing photographs of its many plants — Thousand Springs, Maled River, Hells Canyon, Swan Falls and so on. But hydroelectric sites are running out and the company has at last turned to steam generation.

The concept is simple. Coal from the nearby fields will be crushed to dust and burned at high temperatures to boil water in overhead boilers. The steam will be drawn off to power turbines that will generate electricity. The condensed steam will then be cooled and reused in the boilers.

But the builders are having to deal with environmental issues. A federal government report listed many possible sources of ecological damage:

—Smoke emissions. These could darken the air nearby, and even be carried away to contribute to air pollution at distant points.

Idaho Power has spent millions of dollars on anti-pollution efforts, including the building of precipitators that the company believes will reduce particulation emissions to an absolute minimum. The smoke itself will rise up a 500-foot smokestack before going out into the atmosphere, and the high smokestack is designed to help reduce pollution.

—Land damage from strip-mining and ditch-digging. The companies say they will reseed mined-out areas as soon as they're through working them (A.U.S. Forest Service official says that reseeding a mined area is "like putting a Band-Aid on after you've already been cut.")

It also promises to be careful about digging the ditch for the water pipeline, and to restore the surface to its natural appearance after the pipe is laid.

Environmentalists aren't sure the natural appearance can be restored — the earth in that area may be too delicate, they say. And the federal government says it will not grant right-of-way over its land unless it is satisfied in advance with the restoration plans.

—Possible water pollution or deterioration in water quality resulting from use of water in the plant. The company says that whatever water is returned to the river or allowed to be discharged back into the soil will be cleaner than when it came out of the river.

—The effect on wildlife. There can be no doubt that much wildlife will retreat from the immediate area of the plant. The government is worried that the effect may be too widespread and long-lasting.

—The effects of the transmission line. This line will run 235 miles to Pocatello. The route has already been explored for archaeological sites. Environmentalists worry about the effects on land and vegetation of the construction, and the government report also notes that the route could become a favorite snowmobile trail and snowmobilers are known to sometimes harass wildlife along the route, either deliberately or by accident.

So far there has been no concerted effort to halt construction of the plant, but future steam generating plants are likely to face an uphill fight.

One set of questions that has not been asked is, "Do we need this extra power?"

The power company says we are facing a shortage of energy, electrical and otherwise, and construction of new generating plants is imperative. And it is right insofar as people and business are using more and more electricity, oil, and other types of energy.

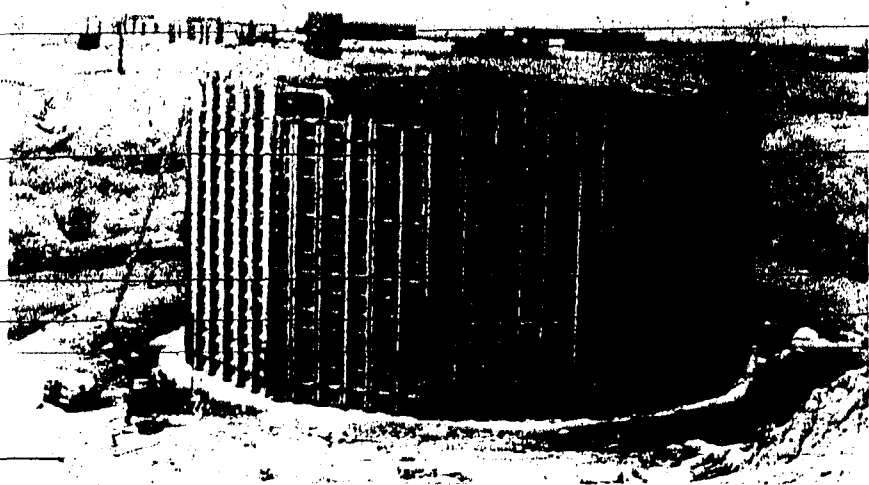

But a few voices are beginning to say that our goal should be to operate on less energy and begin to preserve some of these resources.

Dr. Barry Commoner, for instance, cites many methods of reducing energy consumption. He points out that making beverage cans out of aluminum instead of steel used about six times as much energy.

And transporting goods or people by motor vehicle—truck or car—instead of on railroads, takes about six times as much fuel, causes about six times as much pollution, and uses up four times as much land for right-of-way.

Generally speaking, however, Americans expect to use more and more energy and, faced with this demand, the power companies plan to build more and more generating plants.

But a major political battle over the issue may be only a few years away.

Convention resembles electronic hall of mirrors for brief moment

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—For the briefest moment Tuesday night, the Republican National Convention was like an electronic hall of mirrors, a gigantic infinity game being played across a television screen.

It always is easy to get sucked up in the excitement of a political convention. When the balloons come cascading down, the signs bob crazily and the noise rises like the wind ahead of a tornado, it is an effort of will to keep from being drawn into the scene.

But this convention has something added. More than any other in the two decades of full-scale television convention coverage, this one was tailored for the screen and all its uses. A fine thing for folks at home in front of the set, but strange if you're part of it.

Political media managers have used film and various types of graphics in the past. But there never has been such a mix of the media before, such a blending of what is really happening before your eyes, what was filmed and edited in a darkroom and what is being broadcast to you, as they say, "live."

In the first day of the convention, it was fairly easy to keep the ephemeral separated from the real. After all, Dwight D. Eisenhower is dead, and the scenes of his widow seated in a comfortable living room could be seen to be from the spot-hill country of Pennsylvania, not the warm noodle-soup zanziness of Miami Beach.

Things started getting mixed up on Tuesday. First, in the midst of convention "business," the huge triple-screens dominating the rostrum suddenly began showing President Nixon arriving at the airport. Several thousand people who had been doing something themselves that was being broadcast as a newsworthy event found themselves watching someone else doing something even more important, and in fact, part of the point of it all.

Later, the fantasy of film became real when someone few persons had seen in the flesh, cowboy actor John Wayne, appeared in that condition before the convention to introduce something on film—a movie about Nixon.

And, of course, the scenes of the President breaking bread with Chou En-lai were about things that really happened earlier this year and practically everyone had seen on television.

(If that last reference does not make sense to people who watched the convention on television Tuesday night, it is because they saw an entirely different Nixon film from the one shown delegates.)

Putting that small goof aside, the convention proceeded to nominate Nixon to run for a second term as President. As each state was called, its delegation chairman announced the vote and was shown on those big screens in the front of the hall.

Laird criticizes McGovern's plan

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI)—Defense Secretary Melvin Laird, insisting he was not engaging in partisan politics, said during a visit here that Sen. George McGovern's proposed military cutbacks would "amount to unilateral disarmament."

Laird emphasized Tuesday that he has tried to be "religiously bipartisan," but said he "cannot sit by and allow someone to make these charges" that the defense budget could be almost halved without jeopardizing the national security.

"A cut in the nature of $20 or $30 billion would amount to unilateral disarmament and would gravely endanger our national security; severely impair the prospects of peace and put an end to successful negotiations toward greater international stability," Laird said.

Laird also said he was "sure both political parties back" his position and reject McGovern's proposals.

The defense secretary was visiting "domestic action" programs at McClelland Air Force Base.

Walkout protests firing

CHICO, Calif. (UPI)—Union employees walked off their jobs at a match manufacturing plant Tuesday to protest the firing of three persons for having long hair.

Officials at the Diamond International plant said the three employees were fired July 17 because "their hair styles do not conform to company standards." The policy states that hair could not be below the collar.

About 170 members of the Workers' Union, Millmen's Union Local 1408 of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners walked off the job after attempts by a federal mediator to resolve the issue failed.

Legality of driver plan assured

BOISE (UPI)—A spokesman for the Alcohol Safety Action Project says there's nothing illegal about providing financial assistance to expedite prosecution of drunken drivers.

Director L. C. "Cotton" Lowry said Gooding County Prosecutor Andrew F. James misinterpreted the program. James said last week the program could be illegal because it would pay up to $250 per case for handling the increased number of cases.

Lowry explained the money goes to cities and counties where there is a backlog of such cases. He said it is to be used to hire assistants to help the prosecutors dispose of the cases.

McGovern remains firm

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern will remain "stalwart to the principles" of his proposed welfare reform program, Arthur Okun, former chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors and now a McGovern consultant, said Wednesday.

McGovern's welfare reform program has been the target of heavy criticism from Republicans who have derided it as a giveaway.

Okun acknowledged to a reporter that McGovern's proposal as released earlier this year was "distinctly tentative," but he said "the candid airing it received will lead to a program with broad acceptability."

In a speech delivered Tuesday before the New York Society of Security Analysts, Okun said President Nixon's record was "dramatically dismal" and warned that "no previous incumbent administration has created so much uncertainty about what its economic policy would be in a second term of office."

In an attack on critics of McGovern's economic policies, Okun said "it's time to cut out the mischief of painting Karl Marx's beard on 'George McGovern's picture.'"

McGovern is scheduled to address the same group next Tuesday and is expected to give details on changes in his tax and welfare proposals.

Okun, who was council chairman during the Johnson administration, told United Press International, however, that he expected McGovern to remain "stalwart to the principles" on welfare reform.

As for his tax program, Okun predicted McGovern's reforms would "reflect his desire for a healthy advance in both private investment and corporate after tax income in a prosperous and growing economy."

Man fined for drug possession

GOODING — A Jerome man pleaded guilty Wednesday to charges of possession of a controlled substance and disorderly conduct before Gooding County Magistrate Charles C. Shaw.

Richard L. Kulhanek was fined $42.50 for the disorderly conduct.

Pre-sentence investigation was ordered prior to sentencing for possession of the controlled substance. Kulhanek was arrested at Niagara Springs on March 17 for disorderly conduct. The second charge was entered when the substance was discovered during booking procedures.

Kulhanek was released on bond.

Officers said the possession charge was brought during the short period in which the Idaho Criminal Code had been revised. Under the code in effect on March 17 possession of a controlled substance is a misdemeanor.

2 models named at Jerome fair

JEROME — Top models in the 4-H style review were named Tuesday night at the Jerome County Fairgrounds as part of the week-long activities of the fair and rodeo.

Lee Ann Peterson, 16, took the award for the top model in the senior division and Jan Mecham, 12, in the junior division.

Top winners in the style review plus livestock and other department winners will show in the fairgrounds arena at 8:30 p.m. Friday. At this time awards will be made with Jim Messersmith acting as master of ceremonies.

This is the first time that all the award winners have been assembled for one showing and the event is expected to become a regular part of the fair in the future, officials said.

Wednesday exhibits were placed in the fairground buildings with judging being done today.

The Ray Canimack Carnival show began Wednesday night and will be playing until Friday night.

A western jamboree on Saturday night will complete the week-long activities. Seven teams will compete from Shoshone, Gooding, Valley, Twin Falls, and several from Jerome. Frank Sheppard is in charge of arrangements.

'Loved not understood'

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Observing that "women are made to be loved, not to be understood," the Florida Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that a Miami woman separated from her multi-millionaire husband was entitled to his support despite a pre-marriage contract ruling out alimony payments.

The high court said "perhaps a husband must consider (notwithstanding today's 'women's lib' for extended 'equal rights for women) that classic observation of Lord Byron in his 'Pearls of Wisdom': 'Women are made to be loved—not to be understood,' the court observed.

This Nixon has lost, too

BOUNTIFUL, Utah (UPI) — Richard M. Nixon, who has political ambitions but knows what his like to be a loser, registered to vote here Tuesday night.

The 19-year-old medical student and his wife Pamela were the last of the newly enfranchised voters in their district to register. They signed on as Republicans.

Nixon said he had run for office several times: once being elected second-grade president and the other running for the eighth grade presidency and polling only five votes. "He says he'll try again despite the setback."

Jordan may make peace with Israel

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Defense Minister Moshe Dayan believes Jordan is prepared to make peace with Israel without waiting for Egypt, the newspaper Yedioth Ahronoth said Wednesday.

Under a banner headline, the front page story said Dayan gave this assessment in a talk to a group of Labor Party leaders.

"According to Dayan, an agreement with Jordan" could be based on Jordanian agreement to allow Israel security installations along the Jordan River, to denationalize the West Bank, to make minor border alterations and to leave the question of East Jerusalem open to further negotiation," the story said.

A Defense Ministry spokesman, while not denying the story, said it was inaccurate. He would not elaborate.

According to Yedioth Ahronoth, Dayan said Jordan has softened its policy following the Soviet exodus from Egypt. King Hussein is reportedly ready to be more flexible, especially in his demand that Israel return all of East Jerusalem.

Israel captured East Jerusalem and the West Bank of Jordan in the 1967 Middle East War, its troops pushing to the Jordan River cease-fire line.

The Yedioth story came two days after Dayan had met with the mayor of Gaza City, Hrachid al-Shawa, who had just returned from talks with King Hussein in Amman.

Objects probably balloons

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — Those red, orange and green unidentified flying objects seen bobbing above the Central Kansas plains for the past few weeks may be nothing more than helium-filled weather balloons, an Army-Navy store owner says.

She should know, June Friedman said Tuesday, since she has sold about 100 of the six-foot balloons in the past three weeks to purchasers who told her they attach flashlights inside and outside to "scare my neighbors to death."

Police, however, said the UFOs are too fast to be balloons.

Dan Garcia, an investigator for the International Unidentified Flying Objects Bureau in Oklahoma City, has theorized the objects are scouts for a mother ship.

GOP sees pocketbook as top issue

By DWIGHT JENSEN
Special to the Times-News
MIAMI BEACH — This economic question is going to make us or break us as a nation. It is a life or death issue.

That is how strongly George Romney, secretary of Housing and Urban Development, stressed the pocketbook question at a briefing of five delegations at the Republican National Convention Wednesday.

Romney headed a team of administration officials who talked to delegations from Utah, Montana, Arizona, Hawaii and Kentucky about how to re-elect the president. These delegates said almost unanimously they think the most important issue this year is the economy.

Romney praised the president for his actions on economic issues. He said Nixon analyzed the matter carefully before imposing wage and price controls. Romney called those controls essential to the preservation of "competitive enterprise."

He said unemployment is now lower than it was in 1964 and that the United States "has handled its inflation problem better than any other country in the free world. We don't know what the figures are in Communist nations, but we have less inflation than any other free nation on earth." Romney said that when Nixon took office in 1969, "he inherited the gravest crisis in American history. The crisis of the spirit. Richard Nixon did a job I don't believe any other American is qualified to do."

Romney said one reason for re-electing Nixon is that "he has put an end to legislative action by the U.S. Supreme Court. We now have a court that is as concerned about the victim as it is about the criminal."

Romney also credited the president for reversing a century long trend toward federal centralization. As part of this reversal, Romney endorsed the President's revenue sharing.

He said President Nixon wants to reform the welfare program with three objectives in mind. "Those on welfare who are able to work ought to work or be dropped from the welfare rolls. Welfare should not break up families forcing the husband to leave home. And people on welfare should not get more money than people who work."

Herbert Klein, the President's director of communications, reviewed the Nixon foreign policy and praised the President for "negotiating meaningful agreements" with the Soviet Union. He attacked McGovern's Vietnam policy as naive and said the President is ending the war. "Don't abandon success for the haphazard policy of Sen. McGovern," Klein said.

William Ruckelshaus, the director of the Environmental Protection Agency, said "The President's record in environment is unparalleled in American history."

McGovern gets several million

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Henry Kimelman, finance director for the McGovern campaign, said Wednesday that the Democratic nominee's headquarters had received several million dollars during the past month from about 45,000 lenders and contributors.

Kimelman said 90 per cent of the individual givers had sent less than $100 apiece. He acknowledged that a New York Times story, published Wednesday, was correct that millions in loans and donations had come from millionaires, some of them young and with inherited wealth.

The next official reports from all committees working for presidential candidates are due at the General Accounting Office Sept. 10.

Those named in the Times included Stewart Mott, 34, son of a large General Motors Corp. stockholder; Alan Davis, 24, New York, a law student; Morris Dees, 35, Montgomery, Ala., attorney; Julian Price, 31, Oregon farmer and heir to a North Carolina insurance company fortune; and Max Factor III, 28, of the cosmetics producing company.

Mott was quoted as saying that he had loaned or pledged more than $500,000 to George S. McGovern's pre-convention and general election campaigns. If McGovern wins, he said, he would like to work on some special projects but that most of the young large contributors were interested in issues, not jobs in a McGovern administration.

Davis was quoted as saying that McGovern is "a man who speaks for the people and needs an alternate source of help." Dees said he was concerned about the war and regarded President Nixon as a threat to civil liberties.

Others named by the Times as concerned about the war were John H. Gutfreund, 42, partner in a New York brokerage firm, and Martin Peretz, 33, Harvard faculty member.

Miles L. Rubin, 42, Los Angeles businessman, a fund raiser and himself a lender and contributor, was quoted as saying he believed McGovern could reduce defense spending and reallocate the money.

Howard M. Metzenbaum, unsuccessful Democratic candidate for senator from Ohio in 1970, and his Cleveland business partner, Alvin T. Bonda, were on the list with Bonda quoted as saying their combined loans and gifts probably would be in six figures.

Kimelman himself said he has loaned $50,000 to the campaign.

Demo defends defense budget

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern, hoping to tell "what sort of man I am," defended his defense budget and his patriotism before the American Legion convention today.

The Democratic presidential candidate, wearing his blue Legion cap from the Mitchell, S.D., post, got polite applause and sometimes silence when he told the legionnaires his proposed $30 billion cut in the defense budget would still leave the United States strong enough to resist any threat.

After the Legion address, the big item on McGovern's schedule was a meeting with party kingmaker Mayor Richard J. Daley. The 2 p.m. EDT confrontation in party headquarters was the first meeting between the candidate and the mayor since McGovern forces helped keep Daley and his Chicago delegation out of the Democratic National Convention last month.

McGovern has called Illinois essential to his presidential hopes and Daley is generally regarded as essential to Democrats hoping to carry Illinois.

Before launching into his prepared text before the legionnaires, McGovern told them, "There has been so much baloney about me both in the press and (from) my opponents that I'd like to take this opportunity to tell you what kind of man I am."

"Number one," with every fiber of my being, I love America," the World War II bomber pilot said. "It is the greatest nation in the world and I would gladly sacrifice my life to serve it in whatever way I can."

"It has been good to me, the son of a poor clergyman." There were about 4,500 legionnaires in the Arle Crown Theater where McGovern spoke and others listened to him over closed circuit television in adjoining rooms at McCormick Place.

The legionnaires applauded him when he plumped for benefits for Vietnam veterans and "better and independent" Veterans Administration hospitals. There was little other applause, although McGovern got a 10-second standing ovation at the end of his speech.

Afterward, McGovern said, "I know some of these men disagree with me violently. There were no hisses or anything of that kind. I appreciate their courtesy."

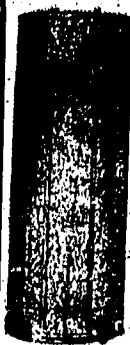

National Legion Commander John B. Geiger said, "As a legionnaire, we respect everyone's opinion."

Lotta buzzin'

STORRS, Conn. (UPI)—If all the household flies hatched weren't reduced by various means, we'd be literally waist deep or deeper in them.

Reproduction of a pair of flies starting in April, if all lived, would result in 191 quintillion, 10 quadrillion flies by August, says Extension Service Entomologist Dr. Milton Savos.

Sacred battle set on Russian tax

JERUSALEM (UPI)—Prime Minister Golda Meir urged "all freedom lovers and haters of slavery" Wednesday to join Israel's "sacred battle" against a Russian emigration tax on college-educated Jews.

Speaking before an emergency session of the Knesset (parliament), Mrs. Meir said the Soviets were charging from $4,800 to $24,000 for college-educated Jews to emigrate to Israel, depending on their degree of education.

"I call on all freedom lovers and haters of slavery to raise their voices in protest and bring the ransom to an end," Mrs. Meir said. "We are fighting a sacred battle because it is a just battle for our people."

Following her 20-minute speech, the Knesset unanimously resolved to call on governments, parliaments, religious leaders, scientists and intellectuals the world over to lobby against what it described as

"this insult to humanity." "Let our people immigrate without ransom, without bias, without a price on them, and without any discrimination whatsoever," Mrs. Meir said. "We're going to seek all possible support to rescind the decree."

Thirty per cent of the Soviets now arriving in Israel will face the tax now, she said, adding, "We also have reports that the tax may be applied to high school and trade school graduates."

"The tax is only part of an anti-Jewish policy of the Soviets aimed at deterring immigration, putting obstacles in the path of advanced education and repressing the Jewish renaissance," she said.

"Some countries still have slave trade, where strength fetches the highest price," Mrs. Meir said. "In Russia, the best price is commanded by intellectual attainment."

President to reduce local taxes

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—President Nixon proposes if re-elected to get local property taxes reduced while holding the line against additional spending that would force an increase in federal taxes.

In accepting his party's renomination late Wednesday, Nixon did not spell out his plans for cutting the property tax, nor did he commit himself flatly to oppose tax boosts at the federal level.

He charged that spending and tax plans of Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern would wreck the economy, and predicted that Americans won't be "taken in" by the Democratic proposals.

On the foreign front, Nixon accused McGovern of leading a return to national isolation, and of proposing defense cuts that will leave the United States in a second-best position to Russia.

In a preview of the Republican campaign theme Nixon said millions of Democrats had been read out of their party by actions of the recent convention, and invited them to "come home" to the principles to which his administration has committed itself.

Nixon told cheering convention delegates and a national prime time television audience his administration had made "great progress" in solving problems both at home and

Demos plan agenda

CORRAL (UPI) — A state Democratic Party Central Committee meeting and candidates' workshops are planned in Boise Aug. 26-27, state chairman Joe McCarter said Wednesday.

McCarter said the Agenda also includes election of a new state party vice chairman, setting dates and locations for the 1974 and 1976 state conventions and meetings with the party's senatorial and congressional candidates.

"We are expecting a large turnout for the meetings," McCarter said. "new state central committee men and women were elected after the primary and this will be the first session of the new central committee."

He said election of a new vice chairman is necessary because Mrs. Gloria Cartan of Idaho Falls has resigned.

Other business, McCarter said, includes setting the location and date of the 1973 Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner and the discussion of a voter identification program.

abroad. He asked for another four years to finish the job.

"The choice in this election is not between radical change and no change," Nixon said. "The choice is between change that works and change that won't work."

Nixon put reduction of property taxes at the top of his list of second term goals. Although he did not say so, he apparently referred to possible expansion of a $5 billion a year revenue sharing plan now working its way through Congress, with the additional payments to states and localities to be tied to their willingness to reduce taxes on real property.

In a recent interview John Erlichman, Nixon's chief domestic adviser, discussed such a plan, and said it could result in cuts up to 50 per cent in local property taxes. The revenue sharing plan now in the works is not tied to any tax-cutting agreement.

"One of the goals of our next administration is to reduce the property tax," Nixon said, without amplification. He called property taxes an unfair burden on the poor, the elderly, the wage earner, the farmer and those on fixed incomes.

As for federal taxes, Nixon said welfare and other economic proposals of the Democratic convention would add $144 billion to current government outlays and force a 50 per cent boost in federal levies.

"I oppose any new spending programs which would add to the tax burden of American wage earners," he said, in a pledge that fell short of specifically eschewing any plans for a tax increase. Some economists say a tax boost will be needed next year without additional spending and no matter who is elected.

On other domestic issues Nixon called for welfare reform, removal of the "last vestiges" of race discrimination, further cuts in inflation, development of more jobs, a continued offensive against crime, and a commitment to repair the American system wherever needed rather than tear it down for rebuilding.

News Of Servicemen

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Earl F. Jordan of Crest View, Fla., are visiting in Twin Falls with his mother, Mrs. Fred Jesser, and sister, Mrs. Ray Looney.

Jordan is a retired Navy Air Corps officer, and is now serving in the Secret Service in helicopter radar. He also visited his sister, Mrs. Robert McClain, Hazelton. Another sister, Mrs. Hazel Pepper, Placencia, Calif., is in Twin Falls during his stay.

Bird homes threatened

FIREMEN stand by while flames race uncontrolled in heavy underbrush in 6,000-acre fire in Topatong Mountains six miles northeast of Ojai, Calif. Some 750 firemen battle the blaze, which has threatened a National Condor Sanctuary for three days. (UPI)

Geneva rules violated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said Wednesday a study of the record offered little room for optimism about North Vietnam's treatment of American prisoners of war.

Eastland offered the assessment in releasing a 32-page study of communist treatment of war prisoners during World War II, the Korean War and the French-Indochina war.

The study was prepared by Samuel O. Oglesby, foreign affairs analyst for the Library of Congress, for the Senate Internal Security subcommittee which Eastland heads.

"What emerges from this study," Eastland said, "is that there is nothing essentially new about Hanoi's treatment, or maltreatment, of American and Allied POWs and about the numerous violations of the Geneva convention which have characterized its treatment of prisoners."

"If anything, the records of the Soviet treatment of POWs in World War II and the Chinese-North Korean treatment of POWs during the Korean war are even more grisly than the dismal record established by the Vietnamese Communists."

In releasing the study, Eastland did not mention former Attorney General Ramsey Clark, who returned recently from North Vietnam to report that POWs he interviewed there appeared well treated and healthy.

The senator said that although there were differences in detail, there was a "remarkable continuity" in the pattern of treatment of POWs revealed by the study.

This should not be surprising, he said, "because in the eyes of Communists everywhere POWs are not human beings but political pawns—to be broken psychologically so that they can be used against their own country and to be exploited, without pity of any kind, as instruments of political warfare directed, in the first instance, against their own families."

United Mine Workers officials indicted

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Four United Mine Workers (UMW) officials in Kentucky and Tennessee were indicted Wednesday on charges of conspiring to influence witnesses to give false testimony about the slaying of Joseph A. Yablonski and his family, the Justice Department announced.

Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst said a single count indictment was returned in U.S. District Court in Cleveland, Ohio.

Additionally, two other officials of UMW district 19 were charged with conspiring to defraud union funds. Criminal informations against them were filed in U.S. District Court of the District of Columbia.

The four indicted in Cleveland were identified as: —Albert E. Pass, 53, of Middlesboro, Ky., secretary-treasurer of UMW district 1. He is currently in jail in Pittsburgh awaiting trials on federal and state charges connected with the Yablonski slayings on Dec. 31, 1969.

—William J. Prater, 53, of LaFollette, Tenn., a field representative for district 19.

Algeria returns ransom

PARIS (UPI) — Two FBI agents flew into Orly airport Wednesday night from Algiers, carrying in two black satchels the $1 million ransom paid by Delta Airlines July 31 to a band of hijackers.

The money immediately was loaded into a Brink's armored car and driven away, and airport authorities said the two American plainclothesmen would take the ransom on to the United States Thursday morning.

Eight air pirates commandeered a Delta airliner over Florida July 31 and after getting the money from Delta ordered the plane to Algiers after a stop in Boston. The Black Panthers movement asked for the money for their cause but Algerian officials returned it as they did a previous ransom.

Miz Jones loves to see how far her food dollars can be spread, here, at Waremart

That's because we love Miz Jones and love to save her money on her total food bill.

We know she counts her Food Dollars. Carefully. And like a lot of us, she likes to see how far she can make those Food Dollars stretch. And that's why she keeps coming back. To Waremart.

She comes here once a week. She grabs a couple of empty cartons, puts them on a cart, takes a marking pencil and storms every aisle in our market. She reads the price right off the outside price stickers, marks it on her selection, and shoots off to our next bargain on nationally advertised brands and quality Waremart label items. Of course, our checkers know the prices, and if you forget to mark an item or two, they will help you out at the check stand.

But, this way, guess who else knows our prices? Our shoppers. And when they get careless and stop at another S-o-o-per Market by mistake, you'd be surprised how many Waremart bargains they remember... especially when they see the price other markets have stamped on top of the same item.

By the time Miz Jones has toured our market, she has filled her empty cartons with values in meat, produce, dairy products and non-food items. She has also found that when money can be saved on one item... money can also be saved on an entire case.

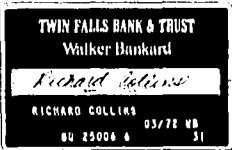

Miz Jones just keeps coming back here for more. She gets more. For her Food Dollar. At Waremart. We love her.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am very much in love with a very fine gentleman whose wife passed away about six months ago. She had been ailing for over a year.

This man and I have known each other for several years, but I give you my word nothing went on between us while he was still married, although we have been attracted to each other since our first meeting.

We are both past middle fifties, but this is some wild love affair. He wants to marry me quietly and quickly. I want to marry him, too, but it has come back to me that many people think we had something going while his wife was still living. This is not true.

Love needn't wait for appearances

I have married children and so has he and I don't want any ugly talk. To be on the safe side, how long should we wait before marrying?
CLEAR CONSCIENCE

DEAR (ON): If your conscience is clear, you have clear sailing. Why wait at all?

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter from "FORTY-EIGHT AND GETTING THERE" with some concern because as far back as I can remember, comedians have been portraying old folks.

Naturally, they come off a bit wobbly, and some don't hear too well, but it's all in fun, and I doubt if anyone sets out to ridicule them.

My wife and I have always enjoyed the Carol Burnett show, which includes skits showing the old couple in their rocking chairs.

My advice to "FORTY-EIGHT AND GETTING THERE" is to develop a sense of humor.

SEVENTY-ONE AND ALREADY THERE

DEAR THERE: Thanks for expressing an opinion shared by this writer and many others. Carol Burnett is far too kind and sensitive to intentionally ridicule or hurt anyone.

DEAR ABBY: Our 22-year-old son has a 21-year-old girl friend who spends a lot of time at our home.

These two cannot seem to keep their hands off each other. The girl is always running her fingers thru his hair, petting him, smoothing his shoulders, massaging his shoulders and legs, sitting in his lap and giving him a hug around the waist. They often sit with their arms around each other, kissing frequently.

This goes on not only in the presence of the family, but before guests and neighbors as well.

My husband and I have both told our son that such behavior in public is in poor taste and to please cut it out, but they tell us that "love" is beautiful and they are not ashamed of it. Then we're told we are old fashioned.

Please tell me what you think of such carryings on?
HIS PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: Love is indeed beautiful, but such exhibitions are out of place in public.

DEAR ABBY: Okay, go ahead and scold those who write thank-you notes and fail to sign their last names. Most people remember to whom they send gifts.

How about the chumps who send gifts (especially wedding gifts) and sign the card, "Mary" or "From the Smiths"? Or (are you ready for) "Love from both of us"?

Anyone who sends a gift and does not enclose a card with his full name, and a legible return address on the package deserves to be stuffed into a mail slot and canceled.

jettisoned a heart. Next came a heart to the ace and a ruff of a heart with East disposing of the deuce of spades.

East had had two chances to use his 10 of clubs but had held it back.

Now South led a low spade and West did his bit to help South along. Instead of ducking he played his ace and led the suit back.

South cashed the king and queen of spades and led a heart from dummy. East had a last chance to beat the contract but he still refused to put his 10 of clubs to work. He ruffed low. South over-ruffed with the eight and West was forced to win the trick and lead to South's trump tenace.

Dial-a-trip

DALLAS (UPI) — Dallas Transit System buses do not travel near Park Manor, a housing development for the elderly. But they will stray off the regular route at a few flips of the finger. The city-owned system has started its "dial-a-trip" program by which Park Manor residents need only to dial a telephone request and a dispatcher will reroute the next bus out of its way to make the pickup. The same return service is also available.

And, the city buses plan to start another innovative service next week when they inaugurate their own version of the airlines "stopover privileges."

Action obtained on Malad Gorge park

GOODING — The Idaho Parks Board will put up parking barriers, fences and signs at the proposed Malad River Gorge State Park soon, according to state Rep. Vernon Ravenscroft.

He said the state parks board responded immediately to his request made at the Gooding County commissioner's meeting Aug. 14 that safety precautions be established at the site.

Wednesday, Ravenscroft told the Times-News two state park officials came to Gooding County last week to examine the site, and that Steven Bly, state parks board director, had called him to say a work crew would be in Gooding soon to put up native stones for parking barriers, warning and direction signs and to fence one or two overlook areas.

GARDEN OF EDEN constructed by the Gooding United Methodist Youth Camp was a popular float in the Jerome County Fair parade Wednesday. During the trip from Gooding, the tree was blown off the float, but was repaired in time to enter the parade.

Writer finds tear gas real

I could see where cinderblock walls had been torn down to provide material for street barricades. Once I passed a heavy piece of iron pipe and tossed it into the canal so it wouldn't be around as a weapon. Twice I came upon lines of masked state troopers, but they didn't try to stop me.

At about 24th Street, six blocks from Convention Hall, the demonstrators began to be thick. Across the streets from them, well-dressed people looked down from hotel balconies to watch the fun.

Demonstrators walked alongside delegates, urging them to oppose the war. One woman delegate was saying to a demonstrator, "You're offensive to me. Why aren't you proud of America?" In front of her a man delegate was saying to another demonstrator, "Well, it's interesting to hear your arguments. Thank you very much." I heard no obscenities at any time on this trip.

Within three blocks of Convention Hall, a group of delegates were walking together down the middle of the street. Demonstrators walked along the sidewalks shouting anti-war sentiments at them.

There were some shouts and demonstrators began to run. Some demonstrators yelled at their fellows, "Don't run. Don't run." But the running continued. Soon I heard other voices shouting "Get out of the way!" State troopers carrying clubs began to run past me, coming up from behind. Twice I saw troopers holding clubs in both hands, the hands separated by the length of the club, run up behind demonstrators, plant the club in their backs, and push them—a shove not heard enough to disturb a blocking guard in a football game, but enough to catch the attention of the demonstrator. The demonstrator would lurch but not fall, look around, and go back to a walk.

People came out of stores yelling to the police, "Kill those hippies! That's the only way." That wave of excitement passed. I saw some demonstrators throwing boards under passing cars, as if trying to make the boards land in front of the wheels and stop the cars. The cars kept going.

At one intersection, some demonstrators formed a line in front of the walking delegates. A motorcycle policeman drove up, dismounted, and advanced on the demonstrators with a can of Mace. They scattered and the delegates walked on.

I turned down the last block toward Convention Hall. The police had buses parked from wall to wall, leaving only a small walled terrace open. As two policemen stood on the terrace, I climbed over the wall. They said nothing.

I entered the convention grounds. And that was when I almost got hurt. I tripped over a sprinkler head.

Debbie home

BURLEY — Debbie Flowers, who was injured June 26 when a car ran into the Burley High School band, has been released from Cassia Memorial Hospital.

She is now at her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Flowers, Burley. Miss Flowers was in Cassia Memorial Hospital, then transferred to a Salt Lake City, Utah, hospital and then returned to Cassia Memorial.

Family members report that Miss Flowers is able to recognize them and converses with them although she does not open her eyes. She does move her arms and legs, however.

The family reports they are encouraged by her progress.

Federal 'tape' delays project

RUPERT — A new federal regulation has caused a 60-day delay in the start of an Idaho Highway 24 improvement project, according to state Sen. John Peavey.

The Rupert Republican said the new ruling requires that all projects involving federal money carry an approved environmental impact statement.

Plans call for the improvement of six miles of the highway west of the surfaced roadway, west of Kinama, which would eliminate the almost yearly closing of that highway by the flooding of Center Lake, Peavey said.

The Senator said that the importance of improving the section of Highway 24, crossing Center Lake, was pointed out last spring to the state highway board at a meeting attended by several northside area farmers and led by Rep. Steve Antone, Rupert, and himself.

During the meeting, the board agreed to develop the Center Lake section first. The original plan was to begin at the Dietrich end and improve about one third of the unimproved section at a time, which would have made the Center Lake improvement last, the Senator said.

Sen. Peavey said the highway project should begin this fall so that the road bed will not be flooded next spring.

Hearing delayed at Rupert

RUPERT — A motion to delay the preliminary hearing of Joseph Arturo Ybarra was granted Wednesday.

He first appeared Aug. 14 in court on charges of forcible rape and assault with a deadly weapon.

Fifth District Magistrate LeRoy Blacker extended the hearing date 30 days, at the request of Minidoka Pros. Atty. Donald Chisholm, who said that vital state's evidence had been sent to the FBI crime lab in Washington, D.C., for analysis and had not been returned.

In the same action Magistrate Blacker denied the defendant's motion for a change of venue. The denial was based on procedural matters, as the defendant had not been bound over to any court and change of venue was not warranted at this early stage.

Ybarra remained in Minidoka County jail Wednesday with bond set at $10,000.

Want shorthair puppies, divorce? they're available at SV auction

By TERRY CAMPBELL
Times-News writer

Demonstrators trouble some Idaho delegates

By DWIGHT JENSEN
Special to the Times-News

MIAMI BEACH — The Idaho delegation sat through the final as-planned sessions of the Republican National Convention, got conned by the Secret Service, and headed for home.

Only three members of the Idaho contingent had trouble with the Wednesday night demonstrators. A taxi containing alternates Ruth Johnson and Elizabeth McReynolds, along with Mrs. McReynolds' father, was stopped near Convention Hall by demonstrators who spray-painted the windshield and ripped out engine wiring. The three got out and walked to Convention Hall without further trouble.

U.S. Gov. Jack Murphy and nine other delegates simply walked the 18 blocks from the hotel to the hall and, except for being rerouted through alleys a couple of times, had no trouble. The final session of the convention went off according to plan.

The Idaho delegation, seated only seven rows from the rostrum, got into line to shake hands with President and Mrs. Nixon. There was an immediate rush and press of people to get to the podium. Some of the big men along the line had all they could do to forestall the rush from behind by pushing backwads.

Finally the Secret Service stepped in. "Move back, move back," they shouted. "People are getting crushed up here. Move back and everyone will get a chance to shake hands with the President."

The Secret Service proved to be inaccurate. Those who moved back lost their places in line and never did get to the rostrum. Those who ignored the request and crowded ahead got to shake hands with the President. Idaho had some delegates in each category.

Then it was back to the hotel, a few hours of sleep, and up to catch airplanes, some of them having to leave the hotel for the airport within five hours of the end of the handshaking.

Jerome fat stock sale Saturday

JEROME — The annual Jerome County 4-H Club and Future Farmers of America fat stock sale will be Saturday at Producers Livestock Association sale yards.

Bill Priest, Jerome county agent, said the sale will start at 12:15 p.m. Those eligible to enter stock in the sale are youngsters who have shown their animals at the county fair and have an animal which will grade good or better.

He explained that the sale is limited to one animal per club member and the livestock will sell in the order in which they were graded at the fair.

Priest said that of the day of the sale, the animals will be weighed in at 10 a.m. as they arrive at the yard. A uniform shrinkage will be applied.

"At this year's sale we plan to have firm commitments from packer-buyers as to what they will pay by grade for the animal entered," Priest said.

"As an example, if a calf weighed 1,000 pounds and graded high choice with a committed price of $28.25 per hundredweight, the bidding would start at this figure. Every cent bid above this price would mean $10 above the committed price," Priest said.

"If the buyer wanted to have the animal slaughtered and use it, he would pay the full price and use the animal. If he wanted to resell it, he would pay the difference between the $28.25 per hundredweight and his bid," Priest said.

Peak achieved by meat prices

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Meat prices have topped out after largely contributing to the five-month peak in the July Cost of Living Index, according to administration officials.

The Agriculture Department's Livestock Market-News Service in a report to be published this week will show that wholesale beef prices fell six weeks ago into a long-predicted downturn.

But the lower prices meat is now bringing or the wholesale market may not be reflected in retail food stores, the officials are saying.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) reported Tuesday that the cost of living rose 0.4 per cent in July, the highest since the 0.5 per cent increase in February. The hike was 0.2 per cent in June.

Higher food prices, particularly meat, accounted for about two-thirds of the increase, BLS said. Prices for meats, poultry and fish went up 2.8 per cent, while fruit and vegetable prices increased 0.9 per cent.

The index stood at 125.5, meaning that goods and services worth $10 in 1967 cost $12.55 last month.

BLS also reported that average wages of workers increased enough to cover the higher cost of living and to improve workers' purchasing power 0.4 per cent in July.

Assistant Treasury Secretary Edgar R. Fielder said the reports were a "mixed bag" of good and bad news. But he added, "We expect to see further signs of a cutback in the pace of inflation before the end of the year."

The BLS survey was made during the first week in July, in which wholesale beef hit its 1972 record peak before turning into a decline.

Wholesale prices of steer carcasses in the week ending last Saturday dipped to 55.05 cents a pound, down 9.1 per cent from the 60.56 cents for the week ending July 8.

"We should be seeing this at retail," an Agriculture Department economist said.

How much of the wholesale decline will be passed on to consumers remains to be seen, Labor and Agriculture officials said.

Soviet crop losses dim hope for better living standards

By PHIL NEWSOM

UPI Foreign News Analyst
Soviet crop failures in the Soviet Union could mean a setback for hopes to raise the Soviet consumer's standard of living, particularly in consumption of meat.

High winds, drought, a heat wave, floods and admitted mismanagement which have cut the harvest in Byelorussia and the Ukraine by 15 per cent also could mean a huge upward revision of last July's agreement by which the United States is to sell the Soviet Union at least $750 million worth of American wheat, corn and other grains over the next three years.

Department of Agriculture experts have estimated that in the next 12 months Soviet purchases of U.S. farm products will total $1 billion.

Crop losses this summer are being piled upon heavy losses during the last winter estimated to have affected a third of the grain crop.

Target figure for the grain harvest had been 190 million metric tons. A metric ton is 2,200 pounds.

Last year's harvest also was a disappointment.

The crop failures are occurring at a time when the Soviet leadership had hoped to expedite a shift from bread grains to livestock feed grains to meet growing consumer demands wheat. The remainder will be in much feed grains as corn, sorghum and soy beans.

Assuming the Soviet grain purchases do take place, the result will be a huge imbalance in U.S.-Soviet trade.

Under the original agreement for the purchase of $750 million worth of U.S. grain, the U.S. agreed to extend a maximum of $500 million in credit.

Anything over that presumably would be in cash and probably would mean the Soviets would have to sell gold on the world market.

Lack of agreement on Soviet repayment of lend-lease debts incurred during World War II so far have held up any general accord on trade between the two countries.

Analysis

reflecting the gradual rise in the Soviet standard of living. Soviet meat consumption is less than half that of the United States per capita.

Suggesting the extent of the emergency is a nationwide "save bread" campaign being carried on by Soviet newspapers.

A newspaper in the Soviet Republic of Kazakhstan in Central Asia blasted parents who set bad examples for their children by wasting bread or even feeding it to their pigs.

A Moscow publication declared that "to throw a piece of bread on the floor or the ground is a grave sin against the people."

Agriculture Department experts estimate about half of the anticipated $1 billion Soviet grain purchases will be in

Pork grades, egg controls proposed

By BERNARD BRENNER

UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A special series of "marketing team" reports due for public release here soon will urge efforts to tag retail pork cuts with the kind of quality grades long used on beef.

The reports will also recommend a study of methods of controlling surplus egg production, it was learned today.

Five reports — on marketing systems to improve farm income from pork, eggs, potatoes, apples and canning peaches — are included in the package. The documents, currently being edited and condensed for publication and release expected in about a month, were drafted by expert teams named early this year by Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Buttz.

Recommendations in the lengthy original drafts range from comparatively bland suggestions to some which could touch off sharp controversy, like the proposal for a study of supply controls for eggs. The House earlier this year rejected one version of egg control.

Proposals made in the reports are not official administration policy recommendations, Assistant Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng said in an interview.

Lyng said suggestions which call for government action will be referred to Agriculture Department agencies for study and possible action, while others calling for action by farmers or marketing groups will be left for their consideration.

The fact that some of the marketing team proposals may ruffle a few feathers does not surprise or upset Lyng. He said the study teams of federal and state experts, businessmen and farmers were told to be "innovative and creative, and not to worry about conforming to established policies" in making their studies.

The pork team report suggested one method of stepping up sales which have lagged in recent years in comparison with beef, might be to "identify" high-quality cuts for consumers in the same way beef is tagged with retail grade names like "prime" or "choice."

The Agriculture Department has for years operated a pork grading system which, while not using names, grades hog carcasses as Number 1, Number 2, Number 3 or Number 4. But the system has been used almost exclusively for whole carcasses, and is almost never used on cuts in retail counters.

Officials here say many meat packers have been cool toward the use of federal grades on retail cuts because it might weaken consumer dependence on packer brand names.

Other experts cautioned, however, that they have not yet developed a practical and convenient method for assuring that grade stamps can be kept on retail pork cuts after the carcass is broken down.

The outer fat layer on which pork grade stamps are applied is usually trimmed and discarded before consumer cuts are fabricated, the specialist explained.

Another proposal for improved marketing efficiency in the pork report called for efforts to provide more competition in hog buying, perhaps by development of regional or area-wide markets in which electronic bidding systems could be used.

Running through all the five marketing reports, department sources said, was one common thread — the idea that, in one way or another, producers should be looking for more effective ways of tailoring their output to the demands of domestic and foreign consumers.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Don't depend on reliable friends today since they have problems of their own and are perplexed. You know just what to do, anyway, so study factors carefully. Tomorrow is a better day.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Make sure that jewelry and other valuables are in a safe place for the weekend. Do nothing that willirk higher-ups. Take no chances where your reputation is concerned.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): You can assist others now and should do so since you are in a fine position at the present. You can also expand soon, so make preparations now and get necessary details.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): You can handle your responsibilities nicely if you contact persons who have the data you need. Increased affection for the one you love will bring fine results. Avoid one who opposes you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): You have much work to do, so get started early. Don't count too much on co-workers who are not feeling up to par now. But show higher-ups that you can be relied upon implicitly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): If you show others more affection you can have a delightful time today along social lines. Give compliments when due. Make a better preparation before putting a new plan into operation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): The situation at home could be unpleasant if you don't keep your worries to yourself and annoy others with them. Make your home more charming. Think about the future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Much can be accomplished now provided you use extreme care in travel, and avoid arguing with associates. Be precise in doing errands. Don't carry too much cash in your wallet.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You could make a grave error where money is concerned if you are not careful. Seek advice from a business expert. Plan time for balancing your budget. Avoid one who bickers.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Plan how to make yourself more charming and get out to places where you can succeed instead of worrying about troubles and anxieties. Don't let yourself become too annoyed with others.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will be one of those delightful young people who from earliest youth must learn not to take offense at every little thing, but to use this magnetic quality to charm others, whether in business or personal life.
